

Morning Litany Day 3 – I Will...

- I will keep an eye on the horizon while the ground around me changes. I will trust the Holy Spirit.
- I will embrace my creativity, leadership, and boundaries.
- I will let my dreams go from the theoretical to the concrete, even if I can't enact them anytime soon.
- I will invite more people into the conversation.
- I will continue to invest in relationships across difference.
- I will fail miserably and learn to be content with my imperfections, trusting in the truth that God doesn't waste anything.
- I will be on the balcony a little bit longer for a clearer view. I will continue to throw spaghetti against the wall and see what sticks.
- I will think expansively about church, even when my training tries to drive me into a constrictive view of tradition, and even when my emotional needs try to drive me into a place of comfort and security.
- I will remain hopeful knowing that God is faithful and continues to be my guide.
- I will both utilize my strengths and expose my vulnerabilities, so I can find God in the light and in the dark.
- I will keep praying, dreaming, experimenting, and leading with "Both/And."
- I will stay curious and keep working with God's help to connect with new people in new ways.
- I will be open to the movement of the Holy Spirit, even when it's not what I "want".
- I will watch with hope for where the Spirit is blowing and moving.
- I will lean into the truth that I am not alone. I have Jesus. I have you all through GOL. And I have Jesus in the folks in the people I serve with. I will seek God's voice in the "we the people, we the children of God, and we the leaders and staff God as assembled for this time."
